

Understanding the World.

This area of development involves guiding children to make sense of their physical world and their community.

This is done through opportunities to explore, observe and find out about people, places, technology, and the environment.

Make a family scrap book. This can be made in a notepad or even on some pieces of paper that are put together. Encourage your child to talk about your family and remember special times. Your child could always take the photos themselves to go in the book!

Explore nature. Talk about what you see, smell and hear. Your child could always use things found on a walk to make a picture.
